Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Walser et al. (US Pat. # 6,731,998).

Regarding claim 1, Walser et al. disclose an optimization automated manufacturing system, comprising a) a computer processing system that defines product packages (see fig. 1, elements 14 and 16) and one or more product subbatches within each product package in response to input product information (see fig.2, element 20, cols. 5-6); and b) a plurality of consolidation systems that receive the product subbatches in accordance to consolidation assignment and consolidate the product subbatches into product packages (see fig. 2, element 30, cols. 5-6), wherein the computer processing system receives the status information of the consolidation systems and produces consolidation assignment.

Regarding claim 2, Walser et al. further disclose c) a distribution system that receives the product subbatches and distributes the product subbatches to the consolidation systems in accordance to the consolidation assignment produced by the computer processing system (see fig. 2, element 24 and 34).

Regarding claim 3, Walser et al. further disclose c) an output system that receives the product packages from the consolidation systems and ships the product packages (see fig. 3, element 140, col., 7, lines 1-15).

Regarding claim 4, Walser et al. disclose wherein the product subbatches carries machine-readable or human readable information comprising consolidation assignment information (see fig. 1, col. 3 lines 63-col. 4, line30).

Regarding claim 5, this claim is rejected for the same reasons applied above rejected claim 4.

Regarding claims 6 and 7, Walser et al. disclose wherein the status information of the consolidation systems includes the load levels of the consolidation systems (see cols. 7-8).

Regarding claim 8-10, Walser et al. disclose wherein the status information of the consolidation systems includes the properties of the product subbatches stored in the consolidation systems (see cols. 7-8).

Regarding claim 11, Walser et al. disclose an optimization automated manufacturing system, comprising a computer processing system that defines product packages and one or more product subbatches within each product package in response to input product information (see fig. 1, elements 14 and 16); b) one or more production systems that produce the product subbatches (see fig.2, element 20, cols. 5-6); and c) a plurality of consolidation systems that receive the product subbatches in accordance to consolidation assignment and consolidate the product subbatches into product packages (see fig. 2, element 30, cols. 5-6), wherein the computer processing system receives the status information of the consolidation systems and produces consolidation assignment.

Regarding claims 12 and 25, Walser et al. disclose wherein the computer processing system produces digital data in response to input product information, wherein the digital data was received by the production systems for producing the product subbatches (see fig. 1, col. 4, lines 1-14).

Regarding claim 13, Walser et al. disclose wherein the computer processing system assigns the product subbatches to be produced at one of the production systems (see col. 4, lines 1-30).

Regarding claim 14, Walser et al. disclose wherein the computer processing system schedules the product subbatches to be produced at one of the production systems in accordance to the status information of the consolidation systems (see col. 4).

Regarding claim 15, Walser et al. further disclose d) a distribution system that receives the product subbatches from the one or more production systems and distributes the product subbatches to the consolidation systems in accordance to the consolidation assignment information (see fig. 2, element 24 and 34).

Regarding claims 16 and 17, this claim is rejected for the same reasons applied above rejected claim 4.

Art Unit: 2125

Regarding claims 18 and 19, this claim is rejected for the same reasons applied above rejected claims 6 and 7.

Regarding claim 20-22, this claim is rejected for the same reasons applied above rejected claims 8 and 10.

Regarding claim 23, Walser et al. disclose wherein a product subbatch includes a plurality of product types (see col. 3).

Regarding claim 24, Walser et al disclose wherein the product subbatches include one or more of image prints, greeting cards, postcards, calendars, photo snapbooks, and photo albums (see fig. 3, col. 6).

Regarding claims 26-50, these method claims are rejected for the same reasons applied above rejected system claims 1-25.

Conclusion

1. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to examiner Douglas Lee, whose telephone number is (571) 272-3745. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday-Friday from 8:00AM- 4:30PM.

If attempts to reach the examiner by telephone are unsuccessful, the examiner's supervisor, Leo Picard, can be reached on (571) 272-3749 or via e-mail addressed to [leo.picard@uspto.gov]. The fax number for this Group is (571) 273-8300.

Communications via Internet e-mail regarding this application, other than those under 35 U.S.C. 132 or which otherwise require a signature, may be used by the applicant and should be addressed to [doug.lee@uspto.gov].

All Internet e-mail communications will be made of record in the application file. PTO employees do not engage in Internet communications where there exists a possibility that sensitive information could be identified or exchanged unless the record includes a properly signed express waiver of the confidentiality requirements of 35 U.S.C. 122.

This is more clearly set forth in the Interim Internet Usage Policy published in the Official Gazette of the Patent and Trademark on February 25, 1997 at 1195 OG 89.
